What is the National Portfolio Day Association?

The National Portfolio Day Association (NPDA) was created solely for the organization and planning of National Portfolio Days. Since 1978, NPDA members have been hosting portfolio days throughout the United States. The primary purpose of the association is to unite and represent the highest standards of visual arts education available in the United States.

What is a National Portfolio Day?

National Portfolio Days are events of importance to a broad range of purposes. Most importantly, they help further the development of young artists by bringing together experienced college representatives to review artwork and offer critique. You’ll hear many different opinions about your work. Do not hesitate to explain how you develop your ideas and where you want to go with them.

Some people make certain kinds of art more successfully than others. It is the art you make that gives you your identity. If you bring slides of work that is too large or fragile to be viewed, or if you make a performance, it is your responsibility to ensure that the work can be viewed. You may choose to bring your own slide viewer, video camera, or performance. It is best to bring only one portfolio, either a book or a collection of original artwork. If you bring slides of work that is too large or fragile to carry, or digital works that is time bound, such as animation or performance, it is your responsibility to ensure that the work can be viewed. You may choose to bring your own portable viewer, video camera, or perform your piece to show your work. In all likelihood, you will not have access to an electric outlet.

No admissions decisions or scholarship awards will be offered to you at a National Portfolio Day. Some colleges represent more than one program on the portfolio, you will receive the visual arts to meet with representatives from institutions offering professional visual and related arts to meet with representatives from institutions offering professional programs accredited by the National Associations of Schools of Art and Design. It is the only organization of its kind, and its membership is unique in its role and planning of National Portfolio Days. Since 1978, the organization and planning of National Portfolio Days. The National Portfolio Day Association (NPDA) was created solely for the organization and planning of National Portfolio Days. Since 1978, NPDA members have been hosting portfolio days throughout the United States. The primary purpose of the association is to unite and represent the highest standards of visual arts education available in the United States.